Scientists Trace Human Ancestry

Old Fossils of Dark Africa Probed for Data on Man's Origin.

BERKELEY, CALIF. — Scientists poking through 40 million-year-old layers of earth in Africa believe they are getting close to the origin of man.

Their search may lead them back 70 million years, and even then may not yield the final evidence, but their chances for throwing new light on human ancestry appear to be better than that of any previous expedition.

They have probably the greatest aggregation of scientific knowledge, manpower and equipment ever to tackle the fossil records of the dark continent.

This is the University of California's African expedition. It is made up of 30 or more scientists and technicians, scores of native workers, army, navy and marine personnel, the navy tankers Aucilla and Alagash and nearly $500,000 worth of equipment.

Digging in Desert.

The expedition has the support of the Egyptian government; Marshal Jan C. Smuts, South African premier; Adm. Chester Nimitz, Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd and Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle.

It has set up to sweep Africa for almost its full length, from Cairo to Johannesburg. The project got under way last fall.

In the Faiyum desert, 50 miles southwest of Cairo, one arm of the expedition is digging for additional traces of the oldest anthropoid ape which lived about 35 million years ago.

At Taungs, near Johannesburg, another branch of the expedition is seeking fossils of a man-ape which lived somewhere between 500,000 and 1,500,000 years ago.

The Faiyum party will move southward by truck and plane along the Nile river through the Sudan and Uganda to set up another headquarters at Nairobi, Kenya Colony.

Formations around Lake Victoria and Lake Tanyganyika will be worked and the party will move southward again through Rhodesia to South Africa, joining the other arm near Johannesburg. The expedition will return to Berkeley some time this fall. Thereafter it will take months, perhaps years, to prepare the findings.

Leads Expedition.

Wendell Phillips is expedition leader. The northern arm now is seeking evidence which may orient the 35 million-year-old Faiyum ape, technically called propliopithecus, or some closely related form, into the direct lineage of man.

Propliopithecus (pronounced propilo-pith-e'-cus) was a small, primitive ape with a jaw only about an inch and a half long, but he had at least one manlike quality — his teeth had the same general structure as those of humans.

He must have inherited that feature from his ancestors. Hence the scientists must look still further back for the beginning of human evolution.

Charles Darwin, who sponsored the theory that man and monkey had a common ancestor, believed this forebear of all primates lived in Africa in the Eocene period, about 70 million years ago.

If Darwin was right, the Californians will have to dig deeper than the Oligocene period deposits of Faiyum to find the evidence.

Letters To The Editor

January 26, 1948

Editor, Times-Virginian,

In the coming election on February 17, 1948 being held for the purpose of electing a congressman for the Fourth Congressional District of Virginia, the voters of this District will have the opportunity to support a man of unusual qualifications for this important position, Mr. Watkins M. Abbitt of Appomattox, Virginia.

Mr. Abbitt was reared on a farm in Appomattox County, received his education in the public schools there and then entered Richmond College where he received his degree in law. After passing the State Bar he practiced in his home county. He was then named to be Commonwealth's Attorney, an office which he has handled so honorably and efficiently for sixteen years that the people of Appomattox are proud of him and rightfully so. In his home county and throughout the State he has been a leader in civic and church affairs, holding prominent positions with both.

Mr. Abbitt was selected to act as Campaign Manager for Mr. Preston Collins who was the successful candidate becoming our Lt. Governor in the last Gubernatorial Election. He was chosen by Senator Harry Flood Byrd, Democratic Nominee, to direct hiscampaign in the Fourth Congressional District in the 1946 Primary. He was then selected as the State Campaign Director of the entire Democratic ticket in the 1946 general election including all the Congressmen in the State of Virginia and was also chairman of the powerful Rules Committee in the 1946 State Democratic Convention. The result and success of these campaigns is evidence of Mr. Abbitt's ability without challenge and also emphasizes the high esteem in which he is held by these distinguished gentlemen and the Democratic Party of Virginia. Some of Mr. Abbitt's opponents have taken occasion to mention Mr. Abbitt's age. Mr. Abbitt is 39 years old. Old enough I know what to do and young enough to do it. If the readers of this column and voters of this District will consult the records they will find that the most outstanding and beneficial instruments of legislation have been produced by noted young Virginians of the past. Thomas Jefferson was 32 years old when he wrote the Declaration of Independence. James Madison who is given credit for planning and writing the Constitution of the United States was 34 years of age when he signed it. The Hon. Harry Flood Byrd was 33 years of age when he became a member of the Virginia Legislature and at the age of 37 was Governor of Virginia and his record since that time is well known. The Hon. P. H. Drewry became Congressman for the Fourth District in 1920 while a young man. Voters of this District now have the opportunity to elect a representative who is capable, experienced and well qualified to take his seat or his stand whichever the case may be.

While this is a special election it is important, and I am urging you to go to the polls and cast your vote for Watkins M. Abbitt for your next Congressman from the Fourth District of Virginia.

Mrs. Annie V. Putney.
Farmville, Virginia.

Bans on Youngsters Cause One Man to Become Landlord

DUBUQUE, IOWA. — Virden Halsey, 27-year-old precision grinder at a local farm equipment plant, has remodeled an old hotel into seven apartments and is renting only to families with children.

Halsey, who came here nine months ago from Alton, Ill., said that he did it when landlords would not rent to him because he had two children, aged six and seven.

To find a place for his family, Halsey bought an old hotel across the river at East Dubuque, Ill., converted it into apartments and announced his offer.

The last of six families has moved in and Halsey's own two children have arrived from Alton. Now there are "more than a dozen" children in the place, not counting those over 10 years of age, whom Halsey considers "practically grown up."

Appomattox, Virginia
January 26, 1948

Editor, Times-Virginian,
Appomattox, Va.

Dear Mr. Editor:

A few days ago I attended the mass meeting at the Court House, along with many citizens from all sections of Appomattox County, to hear discussed the existing school housing situation. According to a report made by the County School Board, after a careful study, the housing situation is bad and needs some immediate attention.

A resolution was offered and adopted that a committee be appointed to study the whole school situation along with the school board. No doubt the findings of this will be the same, so far as the housing condition is concerned, as has already been reported.

The committee might even go farther than just making recommendations concerning the housing — a long time school plan might result. At any rate, it is doubtful that a report will be submitted that all is rosy and needs no attention in the near future. I hope the committee gets the full support of the citizens when the report is submitted.

I suppose there is nobody who thinks for a moment that we can expect good schools or anything else in our present day life without paying the price.

It seems to me there are only two decisions for us to make: 1. We must decide whether we want good schools. 2. We must decide whether we are willing to pay the price to have good schools.

I think we should have schools in Appomattox County surpassed by none in other parts of Virginia, and I speak for one only when I say I am willing to foot my part of the bill.

Sincerely yours,

John L. Harrison.

Forger They Sent to Prison Sends Paintings to Police

MARSHALLTOWN, IOWA.— The living rooms in the homes of Police Chief Sim Smith and Patrolman Charles Harbison are adorned with landscapes painted in oils by a check forger they sent to the state penitentiary.

They received the paintings as gifts from Merle Sankey, a rubber check specialist who drew widespread attention last year when his side talent as an artist was publicized.

Sankey, arrested at Galena, Ill., spent six months there before he was transferred to the jail here. While awaiting transfer, he painted the women's cell block in the Galena jail to resemble a bridal suite. He decorated another cell, used to house drunks overnight, with pink elephants on the walls.

The paintings sent to the police officers depicted mountain scenes.

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By LOUIE D. NEWTON, D. D.

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 53:4-6; Matthew 4:12, 5:17, 20:25-28; Luke 19:1-10; Hebrews 4:15, 5:7-10.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Isaiah 53:1-12.

His Work of Salvation

Lesson for February 1, 1948

Dr. Newton

PROFESSOR WILLIAM JAMES was once asked to give a definition of Christianity. He replied, "I doubt if there is a satisfactory definition of Christianity, but I can give you an example of it — Dr. Phillips Brooks."

Our lesson for Sunday tells us many things about Jesus, his work of salvation chiefly. But before we can understand what he does, we must look again at who he was and is. We begin with Isaiah 53:1-12. Who can read those majestic words without tears? And then we come to Matthew 1:21, "And thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." Then go on to read Matthew 5:17-20, Luke 19:1-10, and Hebrews 4:15, 16.

The key verse, it seems to me, in Sunday's lesson is Luke 19:10, "The Son of man came to seek and to save that which was lost." Hold to this key, and every door will open in this lesson.

JESUS HELPS ZACCHAEUS

IN THE first ten verses of the 19th chapter of Luke we have the fascinating story of Jesus calling Zaccheus down from the tree, forgiving his sins, and entering into his house. The disciples complained that Jesus had gone to lunch with a man that was a sinner. It was then that the Master declared, "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

Zaccheus is but an illustration of what Jesus seeks to do for every man. He has not come to save a few, but "whosoever will." He will not force himself upon any man, but he waits in hope of saving every man.

The "worst" boy in your community may be saved — will be saved — if only he will do as Zaccheaus did, come to Jesus, just as he is, confessing his sin and believing on the Lord Jesus Christ.

HOW JESUS CHANGES PEOPLE

JESUS saved Zaccheaus by forgiving his sins and putting a new attitude in his heart. He had harmed many people, or at least they thought he had. They would not forgive him.

He may not have asked them to forgive him, but when he met Jesus and was changed by the redeeming grace of the Saviour, he proposed to restore fourfold wherever he may have wronged anyone. More than that, Zaccheaus offered to give the half of his goods to the poor. He gave convincing evidence that he was a changed man. So will every man who believes in Jesus.

But we must remember this, Zaccheaus bared his soul to the Saviour in repentance of his sins and believed on him as the Son of God before he manifested a changed attitude.

THE PURPOSE OF JESUS

RECALL again the words of the angel to Joseph, "Thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." It was to save sinners like Zaccheaus that Jesus came down from heaven and died on the cross. That was and is his purpose.

"He went about doing good, for God was with him," Acts 10:38.

We shall never understand the work of Jesus until we come to see him at work in every age and amongst all mankind to do the will of the Father in saving any and all who will come unto him in faith believing.

"SO SEND I YOU"

JESUS calls upon you and upon me and upon every follower of his to accept as the central purpose of our lives this mission of winning lost souls unto him. "As the Father hath sent me, so send I you."

I sat in a boat with two prominent business men, fishing in a private lake one afternoon last November. Mr. Asa G. Candler of Atlanta and I were guests of Mr. Carr P. Collins of Dallas. We were at his Wild Briar farm, a few miles from Dallas. We were talking about the plight of the world. Mr. Collins said: "What is money worth if we think of it apart from the purpose of God? Until we come back to the words of Jesus, 'So send I you,' we cannot hope to improve the sorrowful plight of our frightened day and generation. All men are lost until they come to know him as Saviour."

Let this testimony of one of God's gentlemen be heard and heeded by laymen and preachers alike, and fear will give way to faith, and the kingdoms of this earth will become the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Limitation Placed on Use Of New Drug, Streptomycin

NEW YORK. — Dr. John G. Kidd of Cornell university medical center told the New York Academy of Medicine that the new drug streptomycin often largely overcomes the form of tuberculosis known as miliary.

Although thousands of persons have this kind of TB, it is rare compared with the major form, which is lung tuberculosis. What streptomycin can do for the major disease is still unsatisfactory and puzzling.

Seven autopsies proved, said Kidd, that in the miliary form, bad spots on the lungs were healed. Sometimes, however, the patients relapsed and died of TB.

One possible reason was the ability of TB germs to change their natures and become resistant to streptomycin. Kidd said that in one case where two units of the drug had at first killed these germs, after a while they were not killed by doses 250 times bigger.

Large doses of streptomycin, he said, caused partial deafness of five out of seven of the persons autopsied.

OBITUARY

MRS. LILY C. GILLIAM

While most of the country was enjoying the usual celebration of the birth of the dear Lord and Saviour, there was one family whose hearts were bleeding at the passing of [illegible], in that early Christmas morning, of their mother. But they were comforted in knowing that her Savior was standing with outstretched arms to lift her from the cares and trials of this world, and place her in that heavenly home for which she had been making lifetime preparation.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harvey, and she served them faithfully and lovingly until they passed away over fifty years ago.

In 1894 she was united in marriage to Lillious Gilliam. They moved to Pamplin; he passed away many years ago, after which she returned, with her three small children, to her old home, keeping house for her older brothers and sister until they passed away. She later moved to Appomattox. She is survived by two sons, Willie, of Baltimore, and Frank, of Roanoke, and one daughter, Marguerite, who lived with her. Mrs. Gilliam was in feeble health for several years before her passing. She was tenderly and lovingly cared for. She was laid to rest in the family burying ground at the old home near Hixburg.

While all wish to be perfect, that is beyond the reach of any human being, but few reached as high and came as near reaching that goal as did Mrs. Lily Gilliam.
